It has seen years when its business was so limited that the Superintendent could spare time from light duties of supervising one feebl epollywog of an engine with a single car train once a day each way, to run salt works, write for newspapers, and take general or particular interest in any and every public project, social, literary, religious or commercial; but those days are past, the road has grown with the growth and strengthened with the strength of the commercial interests of the section it has so materially aidod in developing, and its business now requires not only the undivided attention of the aforesaid superintendent but of a corps, also, of office assistants in passenger and freight departments, decidedly formidable in point of numbers, though in all else, as tractible as the tractiblest in the railway business. leng and lo quan One fact worthy of consideration and due recognition in connection with the F. & P. M. The facilities for steamboat connection from the western shore, via Escanaba are equal in all respects to those of the Chicago route, the distance will be shortened more than half and the advantages of this connection, which must surely come, to this soction in the way of travel and commerce are incalculable.

We notice these things at this time; without solicitation, and for aught we know, in opposition to the wishes of the managers of the F. & P. M. Railway, because we believe that is to-day the most promising and best managed of all the multitudinous railway projects in progress or contemplation in the West, that it will as it progresses develop and make valuable an immense district of pine and farming country now nearly or quite inaccessible, and on its completion of en a new avenue to trade and commerce unequaled by the grandest line of the great North Western routes. .
